Hyde Park Corner. This is the Park entrance to the west side of Piccadilly, and is, in the season, one of the gayest sights in London. The handsome triple gateway was built in 1828 from designs by Burton. The house next it is Apsley House, where the Iron Duke of Wellington lived, and had his windows broken by the mob.

Dear Friend,
Glad to receive card to-day. If you cannot send S.V.S send ordinary. I would be glad if you would send principal views of Los Angeles and if possible some Cal. scenic views.
Very truly Yours,
E. A. Reeves.
